The vacant mill building in Main street, which has been idle since the Solway mill concern moved away,nearly two years ago, seems to be a Mecca for those seeking a suitable location for a manufacturing industry. Prospectors come and prospectors go, but the mill building is still unoccupied. The prospectors and owners of the building do not seem to reach a satisfactory understanding, or there is a semething else that prevents establishment of an industry in that well equipped building. But Westerly people have faith in the seal of the state and hope that the Solway mill building, so-called, will be utilized for manufacturing purposes at an early date. The latest to examine the mill property with a view to its lease of purchase was A. J. Turner, a silk manufacturer of Williamath, whose ilk manufacturer of Willimantic, whos father was in the silk business in Turnerville for many years. Mr. Turner was secompanied by Supt. W. J. TO LEGALIZE SEPARATIONS

As Well as Divorces-State Bar Association Favors New Law-Point Not Settled.

There was a long and spirited dis-cussion by the members of the State Bar association present at the annual meeting in New Haven, Saturday, as to the advisability of placing on the statute books of this state a law providing for judicial separations, where the petitioner desires a ruling of this sort in preference to an absolute divorce. Considerable opposition backed by leading lawyers of the state devi-oped when this matter came up for a hearing and the proposition was fought out for nearly two hours, but the rec-ommendation for such a law as submit-ted to the meeting by the committee ommendation for such a law a commendation for such a law a commendation to the meeting by the committee on jurisprudence was finally adopted by a very close vote. This vote, however, is not final, says the New Haven

The committee on jurisprudence is now empowered to draft a bill provid-ing for judicial separations, but before this is submitted to any member of the general assembly for presentation to the legislature, where it will have to be made a law, this committee will report back to the Bar association, and it is possible that the bill may be detected at the time. No date for a responsible that the bill may be defeated at that time. No date for a further hearing on the matter has been fixed. That part of the committee's report which recommended that the state attorneys enter an appearance in every divorce case, hear the testimony and otherwise exercise supervision of all divorce trials was not adopted by the association, as it entailed too much work on the part of the state attorneys. The recommendation that two additional judges of the superior court be appointed and other parts of the report of interest particularly to lawyers, were adopted. The annual election of officers resulted in re-elections for President George D. Watrous of New Haven, Vice Presi-dent John H. Perry of Fairfield and Secretary and Treasurer James E.
